

MAYOR ROSE IS ON THE LISTS

Milwaukee's Executive Is Said To Be Under The Guns Of The Grand Jury.

A LONG QUIZ IN THE JURY ROOM

Protection Of Gamblers Is Said To Be One Of The Charges Which May Be Preferred Against Him.

(Special To The Gazette.)

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 28.—Mayor David S. Rose and Chief of Police John T. Janssen were the star witnesses before the grand jury yesterday. There having been repeated rumors that the grand jury might indict these officials for not having suppressed gambling in the city, their being summoned caused a big stir in the city.

Mayor Rose was in the juryroom for over an hour, and when he returned it was evident that there had been a merry time in the juryroom. Mayor Rose in an interview admitted that he had been questioned on the old street railway franchise and that he had given the history of that transaction and explained in detail why he had so strenuously supported the measure. He denied that he ever had been benefited by his course either by a money consideration or through stock manipulation. The mayor also was questioned about the asphalt pavement trust, but denied that he knew of a combine or any attempt to stifle competition.

LIVELY TILTS WITH MAYOR

It is reported that at times there were extremely lively tilts between the witness and the district attorney. Assistant District Attorney Cochems is said to have tried to induce Mr. Rose to answer the charges that Cochems frequently made that the trust exists here, and is protected by the city hall. Cochems asked the mayor if he read his charges and the executive replied that he did not think it worth his time to read them. Mayor Rose in public frequently charged that the grand jury is a political body and that it is working a political game for all there is in sight. He is said to have jury about the same thing yesterday afternoon.

Chief Janssen was put through a searching examination on the gambling evil. He is said to have been asked who is responsible for the policy that prevailed allowing a certain number of houses to operate and also is said to have been questioned about the case of William Alis, a millionaire manufacturer who recently lost $50,000 in a local resort. It is reported that Chief Janssen told the jury that when the loss occurred Mayor Rose was out of the city, and that when he returned arrangements were made to raid the gamblers, but two hours before the police could close up the city. District Attorney McGovern called in the sheriff's force and anticipated the action of the police by making a raid of his own accord. He is said to have told the jury that an effort was made to get the money back, but that the proprietors had left the city.

ALL SORTS OF RUMORS AFLOAT

There are all sorts of rumors over the action of the jury. One is that it intends to indict Mayor Rose because of his policy in permitting gamblers to operate. Chief Janssen having testified on gambling cannot be indicted on this subject, because he was immune when he testified, but the fact that not a single question concerning gambling was asked Mayor Rose is believed to be proof that the jury will indict him on the gambling evil. Mayor Rose repeatedly has said that he does not care a snap of his finger if he is indicted on that score. He says his police has been known for years that he has made gambling an issue in several campaigns, and will run again if he is indicted and make that the issue.

There also are rumors that President Corcoran of the common council may be indicted. Under the charter a city official cannot sell supplies to the city. One of Corcoran's salesmen sold the city $10,000 worth of feed for the fire department. Corcoran claims it is the private deal of a salesman and that he is not interested.

While Corcoran has been before the jury he has not been questioned about the feed deal and this leads some of his friends to the belief that the jury is about to proceed against him.

The jury is ready to make its final report and adjournment is looked for on Friday. On that day more indictments will be returned. Up to this time 122 true bills have been reported.

ELASTICITY OF CURRENCY SECRETARY SHAW'S TOPIC

Speaks Before The Ohio Bankers' Association
On This Subject This Morning.

(Special By Scripps-McRae.)

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 28.—Secretary Shaw, in addressing the Ohio Bankers' association this afternoon, proposed a remedy for non-elasticity of currency. He said: "None of the suggested remedies appeal to me as strongly as the authorization of an additional national bank circulation. This method involves the right of national banks to increase the circulation of any amount, say to fifty percent of the outstanding volume of the government bond circulation on which the bank should pay five or six percent. The consideration which the government will guarantee is the redemption; this to be used in case of emergency. This method does not avert the existence of an emergency, because it will not new kind of currency into circulation, and when the necessity is removed it will be redeemed and but few will ever realize what has been done."

Humbert, and whom the immigration officials of New York refused to admit into the United States on the ground that he is a criminal, arrived here today. Daurignac made a desperate, but vain effort to gain admittance to the port of New York, and complains that the officials detained him. He has instructed his lawyer in the United States to take the matter to the courts in the hope that they will uphold his contention that his imprisonment in France was not because of Mme. Humbert's swindles, but was due to violations of the bankruptcy laws, which in the United States would not constitute a criminal offense. If the courts uphold this contention Daurignac will return to the United States.

STREET RIOTS IN BUDAPEST

Socialists Clash With The Police In Effort To Destroy The Council Chamber.

MANY PERSONS BADLY BRUISED

Fierce Flashes Of Lightning Add Picturesqueness To
The Turbulent Scenes—Newspaper
Office Is Mobbed.

(Special By Scripps-McRae.)

Budapest, Sept. 28.—Between forty and fifty persons were injured in riots here Wednesday evening when Socialists and adherents of the coalition parties, including students, clashed, and for two hours there were scenes of tremendous excitement.

The students and other supporters of the coalition had arranged for a gigantic torchlight procession, but the Socialists issued inflammatory proclamations calling on all Socialists and others opposed to the coalition to fight for their rights, which they said the coalition was trying to sidetrack. Then it was decided to postpone the torchlight procession.

At 8 o'clock 1,500 Socialists gathered outside the Independence club and announced their intention of entering and tearing down the council room. The rioting followed.

Police Beat Back Mob.

The mob made an effort to enter, but was opposed vigorously by the police. A fight ensued and amid the wildest clamor a number of persons were stabbed. But the Socialists were finally scattered.

Fifteen minutes later, however, they gathered again. By this time adherents of the coalition in large numbers came upon the scene, and their appearance resulted in a free fight between the two factions. A dense mass of humanity surged in every direction, shouting and singing the Marseillaise and other songs. Knives, sticks and stones were used vigorously.

Meanwhile a thunder storm came up and vivid lightning lit up the square, while the thunder added a note of terror. Rain fell in torrents, and the combatants were finally dispersed by the police.

Eight of the wounded were injured seriously.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

Livingston Quackenbush of Le Sueur, Minn., was convicted of receiving money into an insolvent bank. His bank failed in March, 1904. The writ for the extradition of Quackenbush to Ottawa, Ont., probably will be issued today unless some further method of delaying proceedings can be discovered.

Charles Denton, a real estate man, was shot and almost instantly killed by E. R. Horn, a wood finisher, at Nashville, Tenn. It is understood the trouble grew out of Denton's treatment of Horn's sister.

Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador, is expected to return to Washington by the beginning of next week.

By unanimous vote of the German Evangelical synod at Salem church at Rochester, N. Y., Rev. Jacob Fisher of Cincinnati was reelected president for a term of four years. Governor Vardaman of Mississippi has written a letter to the William Cramp Ship and Engine Building company, saying that neither he nor his staff will be able to attend the launching of the battleship Mississippi on Saturday, owing to the prevalence of yellow fever.

Sweet First Love.

If the truth were known the pleasantest feature of first love would prove to be its memory, remarks Mr. C. J. Norris in the Fortnightly Review. Monkey Good "Watch Dog."

A French newspaper reports the actions of a monkey which has been trained by its owner to perform all of the duties of a watch dog. seriously. There were no deaths.

Attack Newspaper Office.

Scattered fights continued in different quarters and crowds of the Socialists marched to a building in which is published a newspaper that supports the coalition. They broke the windows and attempted to gain entrance. The mob was held back by the police, while the printers and editors threw furniture from the windows on the heads of the crowd. Here, too, a number of persons received wounds. Finally quiet was restored.

It is not thought that the rioting will have any effect on the general situation, which certainly has grown worse, while the feeling throughout Hungary against the dynasty is increasing. Among well-informed persons it is believed that better counsel will prevail after the first flush of passion dies away.

Franz Joseph for Peace.

It is stated that the emperor has issued orders that in the event of disturbances harsh measures must be avoided if possible, but no one knows what will happen next. Revolutionary cries are heard frequently in the streets and an element of the population is endeavoring to stir up the passions of the people. This effort, however, is being discontinued by the coalition leaders and others.

It is certain that parliament will not meet Oct. 10 under the existing circumstances, and it may even be dissolved. Among the better class it is believed that everything hinges on the meeting Oct. 3 of the various parties adhering to the coalition. This meeting will take the form of a national conference, and it is hoped that demonstrations will be avoided, and that some way out of the difficulty will be suggested. In the meanwhile the crisis undoubtedly is a serious one.

The tree is called "Pirahazo" by the natives and attains a height of over forty feet. It is found in groves in the northwestern part of the island near Ambony and its marketed in Soanolo. NOT IMPROPER TO CONTRIBUTE

SENTIMENT AT WASHINGTON
FAVORS INSURANCE FUNDS.

SAYS WILLIAM WOLFF SMITH

A Conversation Among Three Representative Congressmen—Discussion Investigations.

By William Wolff Smith. (Special Correspondence.)

Washington, D. C.—Nowhere are the developments in the life insurance investigation now in progress in New York, followed more closely than in Washington. The natural interest felt by policyholders, business men or politicians in the details of the intimate relationship between life insurance companies and high finance, is heightened in our case by the general feeling that sooner or later the drama will be transferred to this stage and ultimately the matter, as the case of the regulation of railroads, will be fought to a conclusion in Congress. Many feel it a great pity that the Armstrong committee is not a Congressional body and that the testimony was not taken here instead of in New York. It would have so enthused the deadly dull summer solstice which paralyzes the City Beautiful.

However, as that was an impossibility, Washingtonians are perforce content to speculate as to the future of life insurance in this country, the relations between the great companies and the leading political parties, and the possibility of the federal government taking control. These speculations are now reinforced by those of Senators and Representatives drifting in to perform departmental chores accumulated on their hands during the vacation period. It was not strange, therefore, that a group of Congressmen at the Arlington last night should have discussed the situation with much earnestness. As the talk was private and purely informal, and several of those present expect to debate the matter in Congress this winter, it is impossible to give their names, but the views expressed are of interest as indicating the trend of thought on the part of public men. One was a member from the South, another from New England and a third from the middle west. In the party was also a man connected with the insurance business and whose name has frequently been mentioned during the investigation. Several outsiders of no special importance completed the group.

Naturally the discussion arose over the contributions of the New York Life to the Republican campaign fund. The Southerner good naturedly questioned the propriety of this transaction, "especially as it went to you all," he drawled. "Now I believe in shaking down the corporations for their contribution to both sides, but it is an unfair advantage for you to take, to get money from insurance companies." "Not at all," retorted the Western Republican, "you fellows would have taken it just as quickly if you could have gotten it." "Come," replied the Southerner, "but we couldn't get it. Of course, we could not get it if we had a million more of ready cash, but if Belmont and Taggart had been more active we might have had something from some of the life insurance companies. I will say one thing," he continued, "and that is, that the testimony given by George W. Perkins has impressed me more favorably than anything else in the whole investigation. Paul Morton has received a great deal of credit, most of it undeserved, I believe—for I don't like Morton," he added parenthetically. "For cutting down the salary formerly paid Alexander from $100,000 to $80,000 a year when he stepped into his shoes. But Morton simultaneously swung the axe on all salaries above a certain figure paid by his company and while he is now receiving $80,000 a year or ten times his former salary as Secretary of the Navy—which I almost said, was all he was or is worth—the men who have given their lives to the service of the Equitable have had their salaries decreased by one fifth. Morton really never reduced his own salary for he never had $100,000 to cut, and while he went from $8,000 to $80,000 a year, the men on ten, fifteen or twenty thousand already employed by the Equitable had to suffer. Now Perkins seems to be made of different stuff. He was getting $100,000 a year when he went with Morgan and company and voluntarily requested his salary from the New York Life be reduced to $25,000 a year. He did not go down the line parading his salary, but cut off three-fourths of his salary at one stroke. Moreover, he and McCall have gone so straightforward about their transactions that I for one am inclined to think that after all they knew their business and that looking after three or four hundred millions of other people's money is no child's play and should be in the hands of real financiers such as these men are."

"What's the matter Joe?" said the Western statesman. "Have you gone over to the enemy?" "No, indeed," warmly responded the Southern M. C., "but it is refreshing to find a man like Perkins after the Hydes and Alexanders. I was in New York a few days ago and learned that Perkins turned over to the New York Life all his commissions or interest in the profits accruing to him as a member of J. P. Morgan & Co. on bonds sold by Morgan & Co. to the New York Life."

"Is that true Mr. Blank?" asked the Representative from the West turning to the insurance man. "Oh yes," he replied, lighting a fresh cigar. "Perkins is a remarkable fellow. 'puff, puff,' when he went with Morgan he made up his mind not to profit at the expense of the insurance company because of his dual position, and I can vouch for the fact that on the very million dollars worth of bonds which the New York Life has purchased from J. P. Morgan & Co., since Mr. Perkins became a partner, he has turned back to the company all of his percentage of the profits. He did this too, without waiting for an investigation." "Mr. Blank," suggested the Western M. C., "How have the life insurance companies fared in these syndicate and bond purchases?" "They have almost invariably made money," was the reply. "Here and there an investment has not proven profitable but only in very few, isolated cases and I do not recall an instance where an insurance company has not made large profits when participating in underwriting syndicates. For instance, on the purchases of bonds made by the New York Life from Morgan & Company, since 1901 the insurance company has cleared nine hundred thousand dollars in round numbers. I don't think the policy holders can complain of that." "I can add something to that," said the New Englander. "One might think from all the talk that the life insurance business is confined to New York, whereas a large amount of it is written in my state and my town. I don't have to go outside of my own experience to say that every one of the large companies is as sound as a dollar. The Equitable, the New York Life, the Metropolitan, the New York Mutual, any and all of them could pay every dollar of its maturities if they never wrote another dollar's worth of insurance. I was talking with D. P. Kingsley, vice president of the New York Life in Hartford recently, and he gave me some facts on insurance that may interest you. Did you know that between 1896 and the first of the present year life insurance had increased from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 and the assets of the insurance companies in New York State alone had increased from $1,228,000,000 to $2,454,000,000 in the same period? It takes much ingenuity and skill to keep that vast sum of money employed to the best advantage." "President McCall must think pretty well of his company," interrupted the Westerner. "He says he pays $25,000 in premiums a year to it, which is one-fourth of his salary."

"I see President Roosevelt has been discussing the advisability of the Republican campaign committee retaining the New York Life contribution," suggested the Southerner. "You ought to be able to tell us about that," he added, addressing his Republican colleague from New England. "I am not personally informed," was the response "as the President has not consulted me. I can say however, that such action is not favorably regarded by any of the leaders of the party with whom I have discussed it. Personally I see no reason why the New York Life should not make a reasonable campaign contribution whenever its officers believe the interests of the policyholders will be subserved thereby. I understand that Mr. McCall is a Democrat and as he made the contribution to the opposing party, he must be exonerated from a desire to serve a selfish purpose. In all three national campaigns hundreds of financiers believed the stability of their institutions would be affected disastrously if the Democratic party should have been successful; in the first two because of the free silver candidate and platform and in the last because of the free silver tendencies of that large section of the party led by Bryan. Consequently, the banks and bankers gave freely to the party whose continuance in power they believed would keep conditions as they were and the market stable and it is not strange that the officers of the life insurance companies thought and acted likewise. Holding several hundred million dollars worth of bonds, as I understand the New York Life does, I think the $48,000 contribution was in the nature of an insurance against the depreciation of its securities which would have inevitably followed the defeat of Roosevelt. This, I believe, is the opinion of nearly all of us and aside from the impracticability of requiring the contribution, to do so would be an acknowledgment that a wrong had been committed, which is not the case. If the New York Life was in the habit of contributing to campaign funds which it is not, it would be different. I have been told by an intimate associate of Mr. McCall, that with the exception of the contributions of 1896, 1900 and 1904, the New York Life never contributed to any campaign fund of any party, local, state or national."

A happy thought, Mrs. Austin's Pan-fakes for breakfast. Ready in a jiffy.

A PESTIFEROUS GERM

Burrows Up the Scalp Into Dandruff and Saps the Hair's Vitality. People who complain of falling hair as a rule do not know that it is the result of dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite burrowing up the scalp as it digs down to the sheath in which the hair is fed in the scalp. Before long the hair root is shriveled up and the hair drops out. If the work of the germ is not destroyed hair keeps thinning till baldness comes. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ, and until now there has been no hair preparation that would do it; but today's dandruff is easily eradicated by Newbro's Dandruff, which makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Charley Howe," the fast little pacer owned by Charles Schaller, took first money in the 2:40 pace for a $400 purse at the Jefferson fair yesterday afternoon, winning the last three out of five heats. The wins were in the hands of Alvah Maxfield. The horse was fourth in the first heat, the time being 2:22 1-2; and second in the second heat, the time being 2:25 1-2. In the third heat he came in first in 2:25 1-2. The fourth mile was covered in 2:22 1-2 and the fifth in 2:24 1-2. "Telephone Central" was second in the last three heats and gave the Janesville horse a hard fight on the home stretch in the 500 and final trial. This was regarded by many as the prettiest race of the day. Mr. Maxfield was deserving of the praise he received for his admirable driving. "Charley Howe" is one of the colts of George W. Howe, the race-horse owned by H. D. McKinney. Among the Janesville people in attendance at the fair yesterday were: Charles Butler, Frank Fifield, Albert Schnell, Emery

THE BOILER ROOM OF THE ROCK COUNTY SUGAR COMPANY

Labor Notes

Labor-saving machinery, according to Chief Delaney, of the Pennsylvania Department of Factory Inspection, is responsible for the large number of children employed in industrial establishments.

Strictly speaking, there is no provision in Denmark for old-age insurance, but under a law passed April 9, 1891, a special form of old-age relief was established, which is granted to any applicant 60 years of age or over, without regard to occupation, who is unable to provide the necessities of life and proper treatment in case of sickness for himself or dependents.

4,000 Chicago freight handlers are demanding higher wages.

The Bakers' and Confectioners' International Union will probably not withdraw from the A. F. L. as proposed by members of the Union.

The eighth annual convention of the International Building Trades Council will convene in Denver, Colo., shortly.

Kansas City will soon have a Labor Temple.

An investigation of the short-day movement by the United States Bureau of Labor shows that many manufacturers are willing to grant the eight-hour day, but that the inability of them to unite in the movement has prevented its being made practicable so far.

New York City striking sheet metal workers will arbitrate their differences with employers.

BEGINS SLICING BEETS TUESDAY

SUGAR PLANT WILL COMMENCE OPERATIONS NEXT WEEK.

BANNER WEATHER FOR CROP

Hot Sun Causes Sugar To Develop Within Beets—Manufacture Has Been Improved.

By Tuesday or Wednesday of next week the slicing of beets will have commenced at the plant of the Rock County Sugar company in Spring Brook and the year's campaign will be on. It was the purpose of the management to begin this work Monday, but from the present outlook that plan will not materialize for it will be impossible to be in readiness before Tuesday. Those growers who planted their fields early have already harvested their crop and commenced the delivery. Up to last evening 150 tons had been received, 50 being unloaded yesterday. An equal amount or more was expected today and the total tonnage on hand was estimated at average fifty barrels apiece each day, making a production of three hundred and fifty per diem. This number of receptacles will be large enough to open the season but before long barrels will probably be needed more rapidly than they can be made. A force of men has been at work filling the coal bins also. Many hundred tons have been received and the work of removing it from the cars is still going on.

Over Three Hundred Men

To commence the slicing and proceed with the manufacture of refined sugar a force of three hundred and twenty-five men will be needed. This number will be enlarged as the season proceeds. The slicing will probably commence Tuesday and the first sugar will be produced about twenty-four hours later. At the start only one hundred tons of beets will be cut each day. Gradually the amount will be increased until the capacity is reached. The stated capacity is six hundred tons, but with good beets and no setbacks the factory has sliced six hundred and seventy-five tons in a day. The capacity will not probably be reached until three or four weeks after the campaign's opening.

Engineer J. M. Smith is laying on the Barrington turn around. His place is being filled by engineer D. R. Dunnawiddle.

The first call for cars to haul sugar beets was received here this morning. The car was taken to a side track near the Hanson furniture factory and was being loaded there today. It is expected that the fourth switchengine, which is necessary to handle the crop, will be put on this evening, all the engines that are in service now being kept on and the 104th, which was wrecked on North River street last Sunday being repaired, will be the added locomotive. Switchmen George Ellwell and Lavern Fraumfelder will be in charge.

Fireman Gruel has reported for work after a vacation of several days' duration.

Engineer A. B. Carver is dispatched in engines nights.

Of Other Lines.

New York.—Those who have been watching regularly every little development of the Ramsey-Gould war say that so far George Gould and his associates have the best of the bargain. For the past few days representatives of Mr. Gould have kept the telephone wires in the financial district busy all day long, calling up bankers and brokers, with the result that they have secured a large number of proxies in Washburn securities for Mr. Gould. Many members of banking firms candidly admit that their sympathies are unqualifiedly with Mr. Ramsey, but they are bound to Gould interests by other considerations and for that reason give him their proxies. Others, not so bound, say that it was simply a matter of Mr. Gould's asking for the proxies before his rival. At present it looks as if Mr. Ramsey's fight would be harder than even he anticipated, if he is to arrest the control of the Washburn from Mr. Gould.

Arrangements are being made by the Colorado and Southern to establish a through line to the Gulf from Denver. As soon as it accomplishes this object, it will be the rate-making road for through traffic from Denver and points North and West of Galveston. The Harriman interests, it is asserted, may be materially affected by this extension of the Colorado and Hyomei Guaranteed to Cure by People's Drug Co. or Money Refunded.

The popularity and increase in the sales of Hyomei are unique in the annals of medicine. Such astonishing cures have been made by this remedy that the proprietors have authorized the People's Drug Co. to sell complete packages of Hyomei under an absolute guarantee that it will cure catarrh. If it does not, the purchaser can have his money refunded by the People's Drug Co.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows Nature in her methods of treating diseases of the respiratory organs. Breathe through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and your catarrh is cured. That's all. If not cured, the People's Drug Co. will refund your money.

Southern and they may find some means of fighting the move.

The latest order of the Pennsylvania railroad has created general satisfaction among the traveling public and the new move of the officials of that road may result in its being adopted by other systems. The order lessens to a great extent the danger of injury in the event of a collision, by changing the make up of trains. The principal feature of the new rule is the placing of a baggage car next to the locomotive as a means of protection to the cars carrying passengers.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, September 28, 1865.—General Sherman, a telegram to Prof. Hoyt states that general Sherman would be unable to be received here this afternoon as expected. He will probably be here on the nine o'clock train this evening, so that the banquet in his honor will be postponed until tomorrow evening. Arrangements have been made by the committee to issue twenty additional tickets for the banquet, which can be had at Messrs. Leavitt and Dearborn's.

In the Gallery of Fine Arts at the Fair Grounds are some most beautiful specimens of penmanship from the Milwaukee Commercial College, of which Mr. R. C. Spencer is Principal. The reputation of the chain of colleges is as wide as the country itself for efficiency and thoroughness, and the Milwaukee branch occupies a most enviable reputation among many excellent institutions of the kind in the United States. Mr. Spencer, the principal, is not only competent in his profession, but is a gentleman in the best sense of the word.

In England, among 311,345 passengers only one is wounded, among 1,250,290 passengers, only one is killed.

In France last year, among 200,000 passengers, only one is wounded, and 8,861,195,555 one is killed. In Belgium, of 2,000,000 one is wounded, and of 8,861,804 one is killed. In the grand duchy of Baden, of 1,554,311, one is wounded, of 17,977 one is killed. In Prussia, which shows most favorable results, of 3,892,208 only one is wounded, and of 21,441,448 only one is killed.

Patent Threshing Machine Knuckle.—Among the many useful and ingenious articles at the Fair, we apprehend that none will be more thoroughly appreciated by men who use threshing machines and horse powers than the invention of Mr. S. N. Taylor, of Horicon. In this state, its merits are that the coupling is made almost instantly, and the danger which attends the use of the old fashioned knuckle is entirely done away with. It has attracted a great deal of attention, and cannot fail to come into general use.

Eastman's National Business College of Chicago.—We understand that this institution which has been in operation only one week, is meeting with the most flattering success. Eighty-four applications were received the fourth day. The opening exercise will take place October 2d and 4th.

COMING ATTRACTIONS..

"Parsifal." In the north of Spain and in the vicinity of Mt. Salvat stood the castle of the Holy Grail, or chalice from which the Savior drank with His disciples at the Last Supper, and in which His blood was received at the Cross. The sacred cup was faithfully guarded by a band of pure-minded men known as the Knights of the Holy Grail. Entrance into their circle was much coveted, and one Klingschör aspired to join them, but his application was refused, for the reason that his life was too unholly to permit of ministrations upon the sacred vessel.

Rovengul, Klingschör determined to seduce the Knights of the Grail, and to this end studies magic arts. He created for himself a fairy palace which he peopled with beautiful women. One of these women, the mysterious Kundry, wonderfully fascinating, beguiled Anfortas, King of the Knights, and brought him under the power of Klingschör, who took from him the sacred spear with which the Savior's side was pierced. In the combat Anfortas received a wound which could never be healed so long as the weapon remained in the hands of Klingschör, the wicked magician. An angel came to Anfortas in a vision and told him that one day on "unknown innocent" would come to heal him.

This, in brief, is the foundation of the legend upon which the great awe-inspiring "Parsifal," which will be seen at the Myers Grand, Thursday evening, October 5, is built. Thus a festival drama of classic beauty and compelling interest is the result. The production, which required a company of fifty people, is under the direction of Messrs. D. J. Martin and Harry Emery, who have spared nothing which discriminating taste and lavish expenditure could secure, and the scenic environment, the mechanical devices, and the electrical effects, are in keeping with the magnitude of the theme.

A comedy of wholesome, interesting and legitimate type is "The School for Husbands," which will be presented at the Myers Grand, Tuesday, October 3. It is said to incorporate in its dialogue the better part of the good old writers of comedy, and at the same time is sufficiently modern in construction to please up-to-date audiences. Stenalaus Stange is the ALICE FISCHER, APPEARING IN "THE SCHOOL FOR HUSBANDS" dramatist who has achieved his triumph in "The School for Husbands," and Alice Fischer is the star comedienne who last season made his play famous. The supporting company is an excellent one and the piece will be presented with careful regard for details in the correct scenic surroundings and handsome costumes.

Every Heart-Ache

Every pain in the breast, difficult breathing, palpitation, fluttering or dizzy spell means that your heart is straining itself in its effort to keep in motion. This is dangerous.

Some sudden strain from over-exertion or excitement will completely exhaust the nerves, or rupture the walls or arteries of the heart, and it will stop. Relieve this terrible strain at once with Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. It invigorates and strengthens the heart nerves and muscles, stimulates the heart action, and relieves the pain and misery.

Take no chances; make your heart strong and vigorous with Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. "I suffered terribly with heart disease. I have been treated by different physicians for my trouble without results. I went to a physician in Memphis, who claimed that I had dropsy of the heart. He put the X-ray on me, and in connection with his medicine he came near making a finish of me. Some time before this a Mr. Young of St. Louis was in our town. He saw my condition, and recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure to me. I gave it little attention until my return from Memphis, when I concluded to try it, and am pleased to say three bottles cured me."

"Boundless risk must pay for boundless gain." And, in advertising, some kind of gain—the pay for any kind of gain—being always pretty even.

ADVENTURE AND "AD-VENTURE"

No store in this city—none anywhere—has ever grown to its full stature, achieved real success, until its owner has yielded to the spirit of "ad-venture," and has advertised more than he could afford to!

Every successful man, in any line of human effort, has found it necessary, at times, to break every law in the "Code of Caution." If Peary finds the Pole it will be because he risked more than he could "afford to."

Modern conditions of life have developed in the race as great a love of "ad-venture" as our fathers had for adventure—and the same tinge of the blood which came to the fathers in the victories of ploungering comes, nowadays, to the business man who has rescued his enterprise from peril.

It was the spirit of adventure which enabled the first Astor to establish a fur-trading station in the far and perilous Northwest—and it is the spirit of "ad-venture," which induces the modern trader to try to establish a store in a field where competition dwarts him. The dangers of a complex life are as great as of an unexplored country.

The store-keeper of today is often in competition with houses boasting "working capital" larger than his entire assets. His chances are small—unless properly has somewhat dulled the enthusiasm of the big fellow—unless they imagine that they are big enough to omit advertising now and then. In such event the smaller merchant finds his tide at the flood—his opportunity not only ready to be grasped, but almost ready to grasp him.

On the day when the small merchant advertises more than he can "afford to," and the big merchant less than he should—less than he must, even to hold his place in the race—the small merchant has "taken a trick" in the game, gained a rung on the ladder, and is strengthened for the next trial of strategy.

PHILANTHROPIC WORK.

There was established in Philadelphia some ten years ago, under the auspices of the International Red Cross Society, what is known as the Philadelphia School for Nurses.

The object of the school is to train young women in the art of nursing, giving them a two year's course with out a dollar of personal expense.

The announcement of the school appears in another column, and will be read with interest by girls who are looking into the future with a view of doing something for themselves.

This is practical Christian philanthropy and the movement is entitled to every encouragement. The trained nurse today stands next to the physician, and her mission is equally important.

The knowledge she possesses not only guarantees a good income, but is of great personal value should she ever become a home keeper.

The Philadelphia school furnishes the opportunity to acquire this knowledge without expense, and the time employed could not be invested to better advantage. Rock county should furnish a number of applicants. The school is supported by an endowment fund.

BUREAUCRATIC CONTROL.

The point has been made by critics at Washington, says the Boston Herald, of our national administrative system that recent revelations have shown that the so-called bureaucratic method of control has sharply drawn limitations, as well as obvious defects. Administrative inefficiency in the naval department, as illustrated by the Bennington disaster, in the war department, as shown by the recent Philadelphia arsenal scandal; as indicated by the cotton statistics scandals and in the resignation of Dr. Salmon, head of the bureau of animal industry; in the postoffice department, as was shown in the trials of those engaged in attempts to defraud the government—all furnish cumulative evidence that it is easily possible for the United States government to appoint persons to do work who will sadly betray the trust imposed in them. It is said that conservative members of Congress are coming to look with more and more disfavor on all questions of bureaucratic extension; that is, on all suggestions looking toward giving the authorities at Washington a greater measure of control than they now possess over the various activities and interests of the nation, because it is felt that, even when officials do not go wrong, changes made in great administrative offices, which are constantly taking place, would be quite apt to throw out of gear the consistent control of great business undertakings. This brings up the point that to place in the control of the interstate commerce commission, or of any other federal body, the administration of the railroads of the United States, where for the greatest efficiency and best results stability and integrity are imperatively required, would be an experiment which, in view of the bureaucratic experiences we have referred to above, could hardly fail to prove disastrous to the well-being of the people.

There is some talk of reviving the Building and Loan association. It would be a good thing for the town and the stock would find ready takers. There are plenty of people who could build a house and pay for it by the month, who will never own a home in any other way.

The car shops of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road in Milwaukee, have a capacity of ten complete freight cars a day, and are running full time. Western roads will be taxed to the limit in moving the present crops.

The best crop is being harvested and the factory will be running full blast October second. The weather for the past two weeks has been favorable and has contributed liberally to the richness of the crop. The tests already applied vary from 10 to 15 per cent.

The yellow fever germ is said to have been discovered whereby it is possible to locate the disease several days in advance of its appearance in violent form.

Russian revolutionists do not take much stock in the duma, which they fear will be so tame that it will eat out of the czar's hand.

Wu Ting-Fang doubtless feels that when Chinamen begin throwing bombs at their officials they are becoming altogether too much occidentalized.

As an analyst of the feminine heart Grover Cleveland is firmly convinced that he has Shakespeare, Balzac and Thomas Hardy backed off the board.

Attorney Hamilton declines for "prudential reasons" to tell what the Oyster Bay peace-making machinery is still in admirable working order.

Tom Platts naturally scouts the suggestion that he retire and leave the express companies without representation in the senate.

If ballot-box stuffing is to be forbidden, Philadelphia's politicians would be glad to have some one explain what ballot boxes are for.

Baron Komura did well to take the most northerly route on his way home and thus become in a measure acclimated.

There are many hotbeds in Japan who want the war to continue. Most of them have not been to the war.

Hungary may not want complete divorce, but it is strongly tempted to apply for separate maintenance.

As a nucleus for its proposed world's fair Kansas already has Senator Burton and the Kaw river.

As a means of transportation airships do not seem to be much more reliable than cable cars.

While the Hague tribunal is not doing much at present, its prospective business is immense.

President Roosevelt holds New Orleans mosquitoes and Colorado bobcats equally in contempt.

Who owns the railroads of the country? The people.

PRESS COMMENT.

Green Bay Gazette: Why do women pad, asks the Oshkosh Northwestern. It is simply a matter of form.

El Paso Herald: Camille Flammarion says the late eclipse of the sun pleased him, and the solar system can now move on.

Exchange: President Angell vigorously defends our colleges from the charge that they are "football mad." Still, they are certainly mad when they don't win.

Chicago Record-Herald: The Minneapolis Times has just suspended James J. Hill's St. Paul paper gave up the struggle not long ago. Honors are again easy in the Twin Cities.

Chicago Tribune: Emma Goldman, who has just adopted hair dressing as a profession, calls herself a "plain anarchist." If her published portraits do her justice, the classification is correct.

Exchange: The United States consumed 100,000,000 pounds of prunes last year, which shows we have about 200,000 boarding houses in this broad land.

Pittsburg Dispatch: We gather that our esteemed contemporary, the Novoe Vremya, is not in favor of Roosevelt for a third or any other term. An opposition somewhere and of some sort seemed necessary to relieve the chorus of unanimity.

Kansas City Star: A man in South

Haven, Kan., has a grievance against an editor and consulted a lawyer to find out the best way to "break up the paper." The lawyer told him the surest way would be to buy the paper and run it himself a few months.

El Paso Herald: George Gould says the future looks very bright to him. Any man with a transcontinental railway system in his vest pocket ought to be able to look forward to Christmas with complacency.

Milwaukee Sentinel: For four years the organ of the state administration has been telling the citizens of Wisconsin what a bad man Mr. Pfister is. Now that they have been called upon to prove their statements they are asking for delays.

Chippewa Independent: The abuse that from time to time is heaped upon the editor of this paper by enemies does not in the least affect him. He is no longer a young man fighting for his spurs. For good or ill, his place is fixed. Never very sensitive to newspaper criticism, he long ago grew callous to it.

Madison Journal: It is fairly clear that an interurban from Stoughton is headed this way and men of means seem to be hovering over us to the northward. Joseph H. Larimer, president of the Indianapolis and Ohio Traction Co., is looking up a route from Madison to Fond du Lac.

Exchange: Naming farms is encouraged by the rural mail system. The Neillville Republican prints some three columns of such names. Some of them are very fitting, pleasantly suggestive of rural life, without affectation. There are not many "Riviera-Tile Rests," although there is a "Golden Nook."

Superior Telegram: The Atchison Globe says: "The telephone girls have more patience than any other class of women in the world; if we ever marry again, we intend to marry a telephone girl." It is difficult to determine whether the Globe man wants to marry the girls, or only wants to get up a fight with his wife.

Chicago Inter Ocean: Among the pleasant customs in vogue in almost Christianized Japan is that of sending death plants to the residence of a public man whose assassination has been agreed upon. A plant of this kind, that is to say, a live shikimi, has been received at the home of Baron Komura in Tokio. The news of this attention will no doubt be pleasant reading for the Baron and assist materially in expediting his convalescence.

Milwaukee Free Press: The most remarkable increase of population in the country is that of Shenectady, N. Y. Shenectady is one of the oldest towns in the state, having been settled about 200 years ago. In 1880 it had a population of 13,555 and in 1900, 19,992. A recent census, taken under the authority of the secretary of state, shows that the old town has a population now of 53,363. It is as large or larger than Utica.

Marquette Eagle-Star: In New York some of the women are forcing their husbands to accompany them to afternoon teas. That would be all right if the men could be allowed to take their pipes with them and smoke and spit as freely as they do at clubs. But to make them sit around all afternoon with paper napkins on their laps, chewing angel's food and the usual delicacies served on such occasions, is positive cruelty to the male end of the higher order of animals. But in Marquette the horrid men are not invited, anyway.

Opposed to Socialism.

Wausau Record: The attitude of the pope in this case (Italian) gives color to the suggestion, frequently made, that he is behind Archbishop Messmer and other prelates in their opposition to the principles of Berger in this state. The archbishop has been making a strong fight against Socialism, claiming that no Catholic can be a Socialist, and teaching that the principles of Socialism are directly against Christianity, which point seems to be borne out by the fact that the great majority of Socialists at least of those prominent enough to be well known, are if not atheists, at least free thinkers. The church has taken up this fight and its aggressive moves must tend to strengthen the cause of law, order and opportunity.

Thrashings Richly Deserved.

Chicago Chronicle: Trials of civil suits in which women are interested as plaintiffs or defendants have developed a particularly dirty variety of legal tactics in this town. The lawyer opposed to the woman in the case almost invariably seeks, either openly or by implication, to asperse her character. This, of course, would be stopped by the court in most civilized communities, but custom has sanctioned it here. The question is whether it will be permitted to continue indefinitely even in Chicago. There are legends beyond which legal blackguardism may find dangerous to venture. The first woman-slayer who is thrashed by an indignant husband, father or son will constitute a warning to his colleagues.

Not As In Olden Days.

Sheboygan Journal: The story of the Fox river troll line's troubles in floating a bond issue at New York recalls the fact that the bond issues and stock issues of new electric roads are far more difficult to sell these days than they were ten years ago. So many of these roads have been financed on the strength of franchises that proved almost worthless that financiers are more careful. There is plenty of money for the good propositions, but the men with money have to be "shown." A few years ago it was possible for almost anyone who could show a franchise for an electric line between two cities, or in some reasonably large town, to get the money necessary to build it. Today in order to sell bonds enough to build a new road, positive evidence must be shown that the earning capacity of the road is twice the interest on the bonds. Very often that is a hard thing to demonstrate.

Exchange: The United States consumed 100,000,000 pounds of prunes last year, which shows we have about 200,000 boarding houses in this broad land.

Pittsburg Dispatch: We gather that our esteemed contemporary, the Novoe Vremya, is not in favor of Roosevelt for a third or any other term. An opposition somewhere and of some sort seemed necessary to relieve the chorus of unanimity.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP OF WISCONSIN PLAYERS

What Is Being Done Towards Making The Material A Winning Team.

Coaches King and Holt are still in grave doubt over several positions on the Wisconsin varsity football team and the prevailing summer heat makes it impossible to administer the hard work necessary to working out the various candidates for the doubtful places so that a decision can be reached, writes the Gazette's Madison correspondent. For two days the mercury has stood at 89 degrees and higher, and after the men get through pointing and running after kicks they are "all in" and it is folly to attempt hard scrummage work.

Investigations as to the standing of Wilson Berke have been made and it is said that the authorities at Madison are satisfied that he is perfectly eligible to play. The coaches are using him alternately at guard and tackle, and the solution of the problem is likely to be that he will play at guard on defense and at tackle on offense. Berke is a terrific charger and has not yet gone against a line that could effectually stop him. For this characteristic he gets his gridiron cognomen of "Slam." Two offensive plays have been practiced extensively, built upon Berke's "slamming" power. He is brought back with the signal to a place at the side of the quarterback, and it seems that he is "pointed" in the direction in which the play is to go. One play is for him to carry the ball and smash into the opposing tackle followed by the Wisconsin backs; and the other play sends him and the interference in the same direction; but the ball goes to Haidley or the other halfback. The plan seems to be to alternate these plays, wear down the opposing tackle and keep the other team guessing as to who has the ball. The plays look good in practice.

Vanderboom Back: Earl S. Driver, who played at fullback for three years after the retirement of Pat O'Dea, has taken charge of the Wisconsin freshmen for the third season. The youngsters will receive more attention on account of the rule which bans first-year men from the varsity team, and they will also have a stronger eleven than ever for this reason. Captain Vanderboom has returned from Marinette. He wears a big patch on his cheek and is not looking well, although he says he is determined to keep in the game and play against Chicago, although he cannot enter scrimmages.

To Make Protest: It has been reported at the Capital City that Schulte, the great tackle last year on the University of Michigan football team, would yet return to play this season, and the Badger authorities are preparing to prevent his appearance in intercollegiate games on the ground that he has already played for five seasons. It was supposed that Schulte had not returned to Ann Arbor and would not, and it cannot be denied that Madison whether there is good reason for the report that Yost would yet have the star tackle in his camp. An interesting story has transpired in regard to an attempt on the part of Wisconsin last year to disqualify Schulte and how it failed. A professional man from St. Louis attended the Wisconsin-Michigan game at Madison, and in conversation with Badger friends the night before the contest related how in fact Schulte was not eligible, having played a season on the Washington university team in St. Louis, which season was not charged against him. The Badgers "got lousy" immediately.

The Proof: It seemed to be an easy matter to get a telegram from the president of Washington university containing the desired proof, for the St. Louis professional man got his information in personal conversation with the president, who really did not like Schulte, but did not want to "put it" to other university affairs. A telegram of inquiry was sent to the president, but to the dismay of the expectant Badgers the reply was in Schulte's favor and actually "O.K." the athlete. This made the St. Louis man disturbed and he investigated the message upon his return, and learned that the president was absent when the inquiry came, and the message had been received and answered by his secretary, who is an alumnus of Michigan. This will not happen again, however, if Schulte returns to Michigan this year.

FREE TRAINING OF NURSES.—Young Women of Small Towns and Country Districts to be Favored.

By the terms of a fund to be administered in connection with the Philadelphia School for Nurses, a number of young women from every county will receive free training in nursing. It is planned to ultimately reach and help in this way every village and township.

The young women will be provided with room, board, nurse uniforms and all the refinements of a well-appointed Christian home. At graduation the diploma of the School and the Order of the Red Cross will be conferred, qualifying for practice in any State or country; the railroad fare will then be paid back home.

Those applying and chosen to receive the benefits of this fund will be given two years' training, with a rich experience in nursing the sick poor of the city under skilled leaders. The term may be shortened to eighteen months by taking a preliminary course of six months' reading and study at home. A special short course enables young women are taught how to prepare for self support and a substantial income.

In addition to regular nursing, the young women are taught how to preserve their own health; how to recognize, avoid, and destroy contagion; how to establish and maintain perfect sanitary conditions about the home; they are prepared for positions as office nurse and physician's assistant; they get a practical knowledge of City Mission movements, Deaconess training, College settlement work, and are trained for special positions of trust in institutions.

The school is ten years old and is endorsed by physicians, leading educators and prominent men throughout the country.

HUNTERS ARE OFF FOR CHICKENS NOW

Large Crowd of Sportsmen Busy With Shot and Dog—The Shooting Is Great.

WHAT YOU CAN SHOOT. Iowa—Prairie chickens or pinated grouse until December 1, squirrels until January 1, wild ducks, geese, snipe and brant until April 15.

South Dakota—Prairie chickens, grouse of any variety, woodcock or quail until January 1; plover or curlew until May 15; beaver or other killed or captured until May 1.

Nebraska—Prairie chickens and grouse until December 1. Minnesota—Turtle dove, snipe, prairie chickens, pinated, white breast or sharp tailed grouse, woodcock, upland plover and golden plover until November 1; wild duck of any variety, wild goose, brant or any variety of aquatic fowl until December 1.

North Dakota—Prairie chickens and grouse, any variety, woodcock until October 15; wild duck, goose, brant, or crane until May 1; quail, English or Chinese pheasant or wild swan until October 15.

The lid is off in the best hunting states of the northwest, says the Sioux City Tribune.

Once more a man can dine like his American ancestors on the game brought down with his own arrows. A dinner can be perfected with rare game, domestic duck stuffed with onions, clams on the shell, spatchcock or angelos, on toast, the appetite can be whetted with half a dozen stimulants, but such things are the end of a hollow mockery. What a man wants is some prairie chickens, brought down with the gun of a friend who has the time and inclination to go up into the fields of South Dakota, or along the fences of Nebraska, and stir up a meal. Friends can keep you in game now. The days of lean-ness are past. There is corn in Egypt again.

How to Pay for License. Not only can you have game, but you can make enough to pay your hunting license in South Dakota by killing a few wolves; or you might pay your expenses by bringing back among your dainty quail, a few polecat, mink or otter pelts. All these things you are allowed to do, according to the just and beneficent laws of Nebraska, Iowa, South and North Dakota and Minnesota.

But you must not let gross commercialism enter into the sport or the game wardens will assess you a few "williams" that will make the game rather expensive. In Iowa no game can be killed for traffic, and you can't kill more than twenty-five birds in a day. The law considers that a load and you will be governed accordingly. In South Dakota, where the fields are wide, unfenced, and the birds are apt to be thicker than mosquitoes in New Jersey, you must limit your shooting to fifteen birds a day.

Where and How to Go. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway has issued a neat booklet of the game laws of the states in the northwest, giving the laws in detail, which will save you from troubling your friends to get you out of jail, if you secure and study it as you would your time table and expense account. F. A. Miller, general passenger agent, Chicago, will send you a copy if you write to him for it. Many hunters are now going to South Dakota and the baggage cars on the morning trains into the Dakotas had little room for trunks and coffin boxes, being entirely occupied by a dozen different varieties of dogs.

Royalty Goes to Races. According to the following entry in Poppy's diary of March 7, 1903, royalty rose somewhat earlier in the day than is the custom now for the purposes of witnessing sport. Poppy says: "I hear that the King (Charles II) and the Duke of York set out for Newmarket by 3 in the morning to see some foot and horse races."

One a Day. If you make one person happy every day, how many will you make happy in twenty-five years? Or, if you should live to be 70 how many would be happier for your having lived, at the rate of one heart gladdened a day?

CHINA'S REAWAKENING.

Coming Nation of the East, Predicts Rev. Dr. T. Richard.

SOON TO OUTSTRIP JAPAN, HE SAYS

Determined to Develop Along Same Lines as Mikado's Kingdom, Says an Old Resident of China—Feels Yoke of European Tyranny Keenly and Will Shake It Off—Danger of Future Bloodshed.

"China is bound to be the coming nation of the east. It will soon be ahead of Japan." This is the prophecy of a man who has spent thirty-six years in China and hopes to end his days there. It is that of the Rev. Dr. T. Richard, with whom I had an interesting conversation recently in London, writes a member of the London Daily News staff.

"China will be greater than Japan within half a century," the doctor declared, still in prophetic vein. The past history of China, considered with the remarkable movements now maturing there, bears me out, China has held together a larger number of people than you find in any other nation in the world. It has done that for over 2,000 years. That means great powers of organization. Now that China is adopting new methods you will find it will be able to hold together in face of all the world.

"By use of arms?" "Well, China is determined to develop along the same lines as Japan. The Chinese are prepared to modify their laws and customs. They are going to learn everything they can from western civilization. In thirty years' time, having learned all that Europeans can teach them, they will get rid of their teachers, as Japan has. Then you will see them rise ahead of Japan and become as powerful a nation as any in Europe."

"Is Japan nursing them?" "To some extent she is. The Japanese have for ten years been organizing an Asiatic league. This league is not only identified with China, but with all the nations of Asia. Statesmen from Siam, India and Persia, as well as from China, are influenced by the league and visit Japan solely in connection with its objects."

"Which are?" "To resist the west with its own weapons, but with an army far superior in numbers. The people of Asia are sick of the white peril. The arrogance of Europeans has become unbearable to them. China feels this more keenly than the other Asiatic nations. The Boxer rising was but an expression of that feeling. That rebellion taught the Chinese they could do nothing against European armies without European methods. They will not rise against the Europeans again until they have learned what the Japanese have learned. And then as a great power they will outclass the Japanese. The people in England—say, in Europe—have no idea of the extent to which China is storing its arsenals and training its men."

"And what does it all mean?" "It means many things. First, China does not intend to lie at the mercy of Japan. It is a mistake to suppose that Japan is going to do what she likes with China. It also means that China is determined to shake off the yoke of European tyranny, which she feels keenly."

"Then you see a future of bloodshed?" "What I feel is that unless the nations of Christendom begin at once to act justly toward China the day may come when China may inflict a terrible revenge upon the white races for their tyranny to the Chinese in their times of weakness. The Chinese are as much infected with the fear of the white peril as Europeans are with the fear of the yellow peril. Unless the two continents change their attitude I do not see how fearful bloodshed is to be avoided."

"Can they change?" "I am sure that so far as China is concerned its development can go on without war. That, however, depends wholly on the attitude of Europeans. Let them be peaceful, and the Chinese will be peaceful. Let them make war, and the Chinese will make war. The reawakening of China has not only brought a war party to the front, it has brought a peace party to the front. It depends on the attitude of western nations as to which party becomes supreme in China. One of the main objects of my present visit to England is to plead for more peaceful methods in our and other nations' dealings with China."

"Falling will soon have a standing army that will threaten the peace of the whole world. It is not too late for western nations to prevent that, and in preventing it they would learn the lesson of universal peace themselves."

Tan Shoo for Winter Wear. "A new winter tan shoe is to be worn this fall," said a traveling salesman recently to a Kansas City reporter at the Coates House, in Kansas City, Mo., "and men who like foot comfort will appreciate it. In the past the real objection to wearing tan shoes in the winter has been their staining and discoloration by slush and rain. A new method of tanning has been discovered that avoids those objections, and makers controlling the process are busy tanning the shoes."

Chance for Marriage Brokers. If any one of your numerous readers (says a correspondent of a London paper) can introduce me to a girl possessing one-half or even one-quarter of the qualities so enticingly described by the late Max O'Rell, and a marriage results, I will cheerfully under-take to pay him £100 on my wedding day.

THROUGH AN ALLIGATOR.

Singular Source of Pollution of the Water of a Central American Town.

Here is an incident that illustrates the unexpected difficulties which enterprise has sometimes to face in certain regions of Central America. An alligator was the innocent cause of the misfortune, and it lived in a large lake whence an important town drew its supply of water. By means of powerful steam driven pumps the water was drawn from the lake through a strong iron pipe, which, after running some 30 or 40 yards into the lake from the shore, ended in an upward turn, a short arm bent at right angles to the pipe and rising to within a few feet of the surface. Suddenly an epidemic visited the town in question. The company's reputation being threatened, it was decided to straightway pull up the streets and expose the main pipes and conduits.

The entire system was laid bare, from the outskirts of the town to the very shores of the lake, but the minutest examination failed to reveal any suspicious feature. Then, almost at their wits' end, for the epidemic was raging as badly as ever, the officials entered upon the last lap and turned their attention to the submerged portion of the conduit, and here it was they found the cause. A huge alligator had been drawn toward the mouth of the main by the very strong influx and, being unable to release itself from the suction, had remained there until it died, and thus, for goodness knows how long, all the water consumed in the town had first filtered through the decomposed carcass of the alligator.

NOT A CHAMBER OF HORRORS.

Mr. Harry Lee, senior in the Janesville High school, is another one of our Janesville people who wear a pleased smile when dentistry is mentioned. Pleased he was because the dental office proved no CHAMBER OF HORRORS to him; because he chose a dentist to do his work who made it his study to do his work painlessly, and he willingly affirms that Dr. Richards extracted two live nerves for him ABSOLUTELY without hurting him in the least.

The day is passing when people will stand to be hurt by a dentist when it is possible to employ a man who specializes in PAINLESS work.

VICTOR ELLIS HAS EXCITING BEAR HUNT IN THE ROCKIES

Mrs. Friend Ellis and Daughter Return From Visit Telling of Incident.

Mrs. F. Ellis and daughter have returned from an extended visit with Victor Ellis, formerly of Janesville, and other relatives in Montana. Just before leaving for home Victor Ellis had an exciting experience with a bear. He and a companion were hunting deer in the mountains when they spied a large black "hugger."

They both shot, after crawling up near the animal, wounding it. An injured bear always climbs when not afraid to fight and the bear began an ascent of the mountain. The two hunters followed as far as possible, but failed to secure their quarry being unable to get up the precipices.

CHICAGO POLICE BLOCKED PLANS

OF JANESVILLE MARRIED MAN AND YOUNG GIRL.

FRANK BALDWIN IS HELD

In Custody Along With Sadie Martyn, The Two Principals in Sunday's Boating Episode on Rock River.

Frank R. Baldwin, until recently regularly employed as a harness-maker at W. H. Hall's establishment on South Main street, and Miss Sadie Martyn, who has been living with her mother in the house next door to Baldwin's home at 213 N. Main street for several weeks past, were apprehended in Chicago this morning and are detained by the police pending the arrival of Mrs. Martyn, who went to Milwaukee yesterday noon. Baldwin is a married man and the charge preferred against him will be a serious one.

Couple Arrested Once Before. Sadie Martyn, a rather tall, slight girl with dark hair and general appearance said not to be especially prepossessing, was released from the Milwaukee Industrial School for Girls on August 11, having reached the age of 21 years. Prior to that her mother had removed from Milwaukee to Janesville and secured employment in the Lewis Knitting Co.'s plant. Upon leaving the industrial school the girl came to Janesville to live with her mother. Very soon after her arrival Baldwin's attentions to her became marked and an intimacy was established of which both the girl's mother and Mrs. Baldwin strongly disapproved. About a week ago the couple were arrested at a hotel at Milwaukee on complaint of Mrs. Martyn, but were subsequently released on their promise to have nothing further to do with one another.

Principals in River Episode. Mrs. Baldwin is a very quiet, patient and long-suffering wife in the opinion of those who know her. She has hoped that the affair between her husband and the girl from the industrial school might be terminated but has taken no active steps to prosecute either of them. Last Sunday Baldwin took the Martyn girl for a boatride and after capsizing the craft brought her to his home and demanded that his wife furnish dry clothes for her. This was about the last straw and Mrs. Baldwin subsequently visited the police station and urged the officers to interfere and prevent the erring harness-maker from continuing his attentions to her neighbor's daughter.

Scene Shifts to Chicago. Presumably the action against the couple in Milwaukee was not dismissed but merely adjourned pending the fulfillment of the promise of the two parties to have no more of one another's company. At any rate Mrs. Martyn went to Milwaukee Tuesday and Baldwin upon learning of her departure apparently believed that her mission there was to revive the prosecution against him. He followed her there to dissuade her from her purpose and yesterday afternoon a fellow worker at the harness shop received a telegram from him containing this brief statement: "Everything O. K."

In the meantime the girl, Sadie Martyn, had taken Wednesday's noon train for Chicago. In some manner Mrs. Martyn appears to have been advised of this move, and appreciating its significance, to have made a successful attempt to have the couple apprehended there.

Accused of a Murder. Baldwin had not always been a sober, industrious citizen and a good husband prior to advent of the Martyn girl, though he pursued his trade steadily and kept out of trouble for two or three years past. Some years ago he was tried and acquitted of the murder of a man named Finch at Crystal Springs. When his wife subsequently came into possession of a small sum of money he is reported to have squandered a considerable portion of it for strong drink and he has been generally regarded by the police as a turbulent character who might take a notion to identify himself with some serious escapade at any time.

EVEN GOLF SAID TO BE NATURE'S REMEDY

Chicago Man Says That It Is A Sure Cure For Hay Fever—Seeing Is Believing.

Janesville people who suffer with hay fever have no need to go to the northern woods and pine forests for relief in the future, if the statement of George E. Colby of Chicago, much cheaper and far more satisfactory to the sufferers' families, can be found by simply playing golf. Whether it is the swear-words of the game, the open-air exercise or the after effects at the clubhouse after several hotly contested rounds of play remains to be seen. Mr. Colby says:

"I believe golf will cure any case of hay fever in the country. To show how convinced I am in my belief, offer to take any fever victim, give him regular exercise at golf, and cure him of the disease without fail."

Suffers For Twenty-Two Years. "I suffered from the worst kind of hay fever for twenty-two years, and I cured myself by playing golf. The new organization founded for the purpose of fighting the disease may be interested in knowing just how I did it. Well, I didn't know I was accomplishing a cure until it was all over. Two years ago, after suffering every year from the middle of August to the time of the first frosts because of hay fever, I took up golf playing because all the other Irving Park people were doing the same thing. Previous to that time I had gone to Colorado or northern Michigan every summer to get away from hay fever. This time, however, the season progressed, I was surprised to find that the malady was disappearing and I didn't have to go away. I thought the change strange, for I had tried every possible remedy before that time without effect."

Played Last Year. "Last year I played golf with increased pleasure. Four times a week I went to the Irving links and got into the game for all it was worth. I perspired and breathed in the fresh air with a vim that couldn't help make me feel better. For over an hour each time I drove and putted balls enthusiastically. I had no hay fever during the whole summer. I played the game again this year and have suffered not the slightest touch of the malady. I wondered what made the change and decided it was the golf."

Play With Enthusiasm. "My advice to hay fever victims is: Play golf with enthusiasm, perspire freely, and rid yourself of the disease. Breathe the fresh air of the links. Take the exercise with the right spirit four times a week and you never will be troubled with the fever again."

HIT BY ENGINE; DEATH FOLLOWS

MAN INJURED AT BARDWELL LAST NIGHT DIES TODAY.

WAS IN PALMER HOSPITAL

Manner Of Accident Will Always Be A Mystery—Was He Sleeping on Track?

In a manner which will always be a mystery no doubt, Fred H. Jacob of Chicago, a brakeman on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, was struck by a passenger train at Bardwell last night and died this morning shortly after eleven o'clock in the Palmer hospital without regaining consciousness. He was a new man on the road and being the youngest in point of service was performing the duties of head brakeman; that is, his position was at the head of the train. At Bardwell the freight was sidetracked to allow the passenger from Chicago, which arrives in Janesville at 5:50 o'clock to pass, and it was his work to watch the switch.

Saw Lantern Hurled. As the passenger neared the siding the freight crew, as is natural, watched it and at the moment it reached the switch where Jacob was stationed the freight engineer and fireman saw a small light hurled as if from the front of the passenger locomotive. The signal to again take the main track after the passenger had passed was not given and fearing something was wrong members of the freight crew went to investigate. They found the unfortunate brakeman about ten feet from the track unconscious and in a much cramped position. Just how it happened that he was hit never will be known. It seems almost incredible that he could have sat down on the rails, waiting the arrival of the passenger and gone to sleep there, though this is the only answer that railroad men seem to be able to give in accounting for the accident.

Not Seen. A message bearing the news was sent to Janesville and when the passenger arrived Engineer Richard first learned that he had struck the man. He stated that neither himself nor his fireman knew that anyone had even been on the track and saw nothing of the lantern that was hurled. Jacob was brought here on the freight and taken to the Palmer hospital in the Russell ambulance. Dr. Piffard was summoned and after an examination pronounced the man to be in a dying condition.

Body Hardly Bruised. There was hardly a mark on Jacob's body and though he was unconscious his fellow workmen did not believe him to be more than bruised. The fatal injury was at the base of the skull, where a fracture had been inflicted. Being in this place nothing could be done to relieve the man. Other than from this the only mark was a bruise on the right shoulder, though there might have been internal injuries. Jacob lay all night and up till after eleven this morning in a senseless condition, death not occurring until shortly before noon.

Is Shipped to Chicago. Railroad authorities telegraphed the knowledge of the accident to his family and relatives in Chicago and Jacob's mother, wife and brother-in-law arrived here this morning before the demise. The remains were cared for at the Kimball morgue and were to be shipped to Chicago at five-thirty this afternoon, no funeral services being held here.

Parents, Wife and Child. Fred H. Jacob was twenty-seven years of age and resided at 739 Washanaw avenue, Chicago. He recently entered the employ of the St. Paul railroad and the trip last evening was his second over the Janesville & Southeastern line. There are left to mourn his sad death, a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Jacob, 541 Thomas street, Chicago; a wife and little girl. Those who were in the city today were Mrs. R. R. Jacob, Mrs. Fred H. Jacob and Harry C. Krause, a brother-in-law of the deceased.

ST. PAUL ROAD BUYS THE NASH PROPERTY

Paid $2,800 For Land—Presented House To Former—Purchase An Adjoining Lot.

Late yesterday afternoon an agreement on the price of the property owned jointly by Mary A. Bernard and John L. Nash and located to the west of the St. Paul roundhouse, by the agents of the C. & M. St. P. railroad and the holders was reached, and the land has been transferred. The price paid is said to be $2,800, a compromise from the amount asked by the former owner and the last proposition made by the buyers. The first attempt to buy this property was made last summer by a stranger supposed to be an agent of the road. He offered $1,500 for the place. Later the railroad tried openly to purchase at $2,000, but Mr. Nash, not wishing to move from the home in which he lived for many years and valuing his real estate above that amount, asked $3,000. The price finally paid was nearly what he asked, for the buyers presented him with the dwelling which stands on the property, provided he move off the land within three days. Mr. Nash will place the house on some property which he owns in the first ward. In the application made by the railroad for the condemnation of this land through the courts the property was described as lot 3, block 20, Smith's addition and a strip two rods wide lying north and adjoining said lot—being the south half of the vacated thoroughfare known as School street. The provision that the house must be moved within three days means that the railroad will begin building immediately and will have the roundhouse ready for occupancy before winter. Another lot to the west of the Nash property was purchased of Mary Dalton for $700.

White Waistings. J. M. Bostwick & Sons offer them at special prices Saturday.

ARE NOW STEALING HORSES IN PAIRS

Thieves Are Growing Bolder in Southern Wisconsin—Cherry Valley Farmer Loses A Team.

From the premises of Swan Westengreen, a farmer living five miles south of Cherry Valley, a team of horses, a rubber-tired buggy, a single harness, and a quantity of grain were stolen one night this week. The theft was not discovered until nine o'clock the following morning. Mr. Westengreen arising late on account of illness and the hired-man taking it for granted when he did not find the horses in the barn that they had been turned out to pasture. Two dogs, kept on the place, were sick and unable to eat and it is believed that they were dragged by the thieves before the theft was attempted.

FORMER RESIDENT LIVES IN THE WEST

Mrs. Henry Saunders Formerly Miss Virginia Hayner Will Visit Here Shortly.

Mrs. Henry J. Saunders, formerly Miss Virginia Hayner of Janesville, a graduate of the high school in 1898, has been following an interesting career in the west as the wife of a civil engineer. She is a graduate of the university with the class of 1902, and is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hayner in Madison, and will remain in Madison for perhaps three weeks. Mrs. Saunders is just from Cody, Wyoming, where Mr. Saunders, graduate of the university engineering school with the class of 1902, is one of the assistant engineers on the construction of the world's largest dam. This structure is being built by the United States reclamation service, for the impounding of the waters of the Shoshone river. It is to be 208 feet high and will store sufficient water to irrigate 150,000 acres of land which is now wasted. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders will make their home in Omaha, where Mr. Saunders has accepted a position of much responsibility with the Union Pacific railroad. He is to have charge of the civil engineering branch connected with the Union Pacific's new shops, terminals and other improvements. After a stay in Madison Mrs. Saunders will visit relatives in Janesville.

HAVE CONFIRMED LATE ELECTION

FIRE AND POLICE COMMISSION CONFIRM APPLEBY'S ELECTION

TALK OF A LIGHT SYSTEM

No Changes Have Been Made in The Police Department Since Election of The New Marshal.

At a recent meeting of the Fire and Police commission the election of City Marshal William Appleby by the common council was confirmed without a dissenting vote. This is customary in the election of a city marshal, chief of the fire department or any patrolmen or firemen appointed by the chiefs of the two departments and approved by the council. While there is a question as to whether the chief of the fire department or the city marshal come directly under the civil service rules it is customary to have their elections ratified by the commission.

Running Smoothly. Marshal Appleby has not yet made any radical changes in the police department. He has carefully gone over the city and the beats traveled by the officers, and has made a few suggestions but no changes of any importance have as yet been made. It is possible that in a few days a different assignment of the work may be made, but for the present the street men remain the same. Morrissey and Champion will still be on the east side of the river nights, and Fanning and Bear on the west side at night. Benek is on the downtown streets days from seven to seven, leaving Brown as an emergency man to work with the marshal taking in the outlying districts and railway yards.

May Have Lights. There has been some talk among the aldermen to the effect that a system of lights similar to those used in Beloit and Rockford might be well for this city and it is possible that this question may be presented to the council for their consideration. With such a system every subscriber of the telephone would be in instant touch with the members of the force and the work of summoning officers when needed would be reduced to a minimum. The plan, however, is only being discussed and nothing beyond being talked of has been done.

Need a Horse. It is, however, probable that the city marshal will soon request the use of a horse for his use and the work of the department. His request will probably be granted and the horse formerly used by the department turned over to him. A horse would greatly facilitate the visits to the outlying districts during the afternoon and the gathering in of drunks who may be disturbing residence neighborhoods.

Card of Thanks. I desire to express my sincere thanks to my relatives and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown me in the recent death of my beloved mother. LUREANA M. SCHENK.

Football Outlook In East

The Prominent Teams Except Columbia Appear Strong --- Yale; Princeton, Harvard and Penn Are Hopeful --- Reid Inspires Crimson Eleven.

The indications at the majority of the large eastern colleges point to good football teams, the only exception to the rule being Columbia. The New York collegians are apparently in a bad way as far as material goes, and it does not look as if they could possibly aspire to championship honors. There are rumors of all kinds floating about which intimate surprises to those who consider that the blue and white have almost no encouraging prospects. There is talk of new men from the west, but as yet none has put in an appearance at the football house. Head Coach Morley is now on hand and drilling the men into shape.

Pennsylvania will have nearly all of last year's eleven to represent her on the field this season, and it looks as if she would have a team about the equal of that of 1904. In addition, there is expected a large squad of promising "prep" school material for Mike Murphy to round into form. The fact that Murphy has returned to Pennsylvania is taken as a good omen by many of the followers of the red and blue, and they are sure the championship of 1905 will fall to the lot of the Quaker institution.

Yale enters gridiron work with prospects hardly as favorable as those of last year, yet without any cause to feel gloom. Some of the giants who have carried many a team to victory, such as Hogan and Bloomer, are missed when the team lines up for practice. Princeton has a fair allotment of veterans and is due to figure in the big games as a prominent factor. There will have to be hard work on the part of the coaches and Captain Cooney, but it is thought with proper attention the wearers of the orange and black can get into good condition.

BILL MORLEY, HEAD COACH AT COLUMBIA.

There is no lack of confidence on the part of the Princeton students, and they freely predict a strong eleven. The incoming class is expected to furnish some good material for the team.

Harvard will be an important factor in the season of 1905. The crimson once again has the services of Bill Reid, and the undergraduates have confidence that if any one man can bring Harvard's football standing up to par he is the one to do it.

CHAPTER XVIII. THE PLAGUES.

THE court was gone, and Masanath was making the most of each day of her freedom. Memphis was in a state of apathy, worn out by revel and emptied of her luminaries. Ta-merti, intoxicated with the importance of her position as lady in waiting to the queen, had departed with her husband, the eunuch. To have returned to her home in On with an ache in her brave little heart that outweighed even Masanath's for heaviness. The last of Sati's lovelike behavior toward her dated back to a time before the court had gone to Thebes—long, long ago.

Ta-user also had gone, but the faithful daughter did not regret her. The other ladies who remained in Memphis, frightened at the loftiness of Masanath's future, were uneasy in her presence and seemed more inclined to bend the knee before her than to continue the girlish companionship that had once been between them.

It was now the middle of June, the height of Egyptian summer. In a little space the marshes, which had been for eight months favorite haunts of fowling, would be submerged, for the inundation was not far away. Masanath would hunt for wild duck and mallard hen while there was yet time.

It was an hour after sunrise. Her raft, built of papyrus, was boat shaped and graceful as a swan. Pepl was at the long-handled sweep in the stern. Masanath sat in the middle, which was heaped with nets, throw sticks and bows and arrows. A pair of decoy birds, tame and unfettered, stood near her, craning their small heads, peeped at the movement of the boat, which was undecomposable, since they were motionless. Nari sat in the prow, her hands folded, her face quite expressionless. The service of the day was out of the routine, but as a good servant she was capable of adapting herself to the change.

"A pest on the bun!" Masanath exclaimed. "Look at the Marsh of the Discontented Soul! It fairly swarms with teal and coot. And see the snipe on the sand." She stood up and watched the sandy strip they were nearing. They were a goodly distance out from the shore, but Pepl poled nearer mid-stream.

She sat down again and looked at the decoy birds. Their timidity had increased into actual fear. Masanath reached a soothing hand toward one of them, and it took wings and flew. The mate followed, mimicking. The shining distance swallowed them up. "Let us leave this vicinity," Pepl said, suiting the action to the word. "It is unholy." He seized the sweep and drove the raft about, polling with wide strokes. At that moment a cry which was more of a hoarse whisper broke from his lips:

"Body of Osiris! The river! The river!" Masanath leaned on one hand and looked over the side of the raft. With a bound and a shivering cry, Nari was covering beside her, the little craft tossing on the waves at the force of the leap. Instantly Pepl was at her other side on his knees, praying and shaking. And together the trio huddled, but only one, Masanath, was brave enough to watch what was happening.

From the bottom of the Nile a turbid convection was taking place, as if the river silt had been stirred up, but the turning current was assuming a dull red tinge. The action had been rapid. Already the stain had predominated, streaks of clear water only here and there clarifying the opaque coloring. The boat rode half its depth in red; the paddle dripped red; the splashes of water within on the bottom were red; the sun shone broadly into the mirroring red, a sliding, reeking red! A lavender foam broke its bubbles against the drifting raft, and a tepid, invisible vapor, like a moist breath, exhaled from the ensanguined surface.

Schools of fish, struggling and leaping, filled the space immediately above the water and combed the raft with a writhing mass. Numberless crocodiles bounded into the air, braying, snorting, rending one another and churning the river into froth by their hideous battle. Dwellers of the deep water drifted into the upper tide—monsters of the muck at the Nile bottom, turtles, huge crawfish, water newts, spotted snakes, curious bleached creatures that had never seen the day, great drifts of insects, with frogs, tadpoles—everything of aquatic animate life came up dead or dying terribly. Along either bank water buffalo and wallowing swine, which had been in the pools near the river, clambered ponderously, snorting at every step.

Vessels were putting about and flying for the shore. From the prow of one tall boat with distended sails a figure was seen to spring high and disappear under the red torrent. Nothing came of river men fought for first landing at the accessible places on the banks. Memphis shrieked, and the pastures became compounds of wild beasts that deafened heaven with their savage bellowing.

Pepl and Nari had no thought of saving themselves. It was Masanath who must save them. Seizing the sweep, she poled with superhuman strength toward the nearest shore, the Marsh of the Discontented Soul.

The raft grounded, and as a viscous wash of red lapped across it she leaped forth, landing with both feet in the horror. She clattered out and, crying to her servants to follow her, fled like a mad thing up the sandy stretch toward the distant wall of rock.

The boat, lightened of her weight, recoiled a backward thrust as she leaped and drifted out of the reeds. The heavy current caught it and swept it across the smitten river to the Memphian shore. It bore two insensible figures.

Masanath ran, thinking only to leave the ghastly flood behind. Her wet over-dress clapped about her ankles. It, too, was stained, and she tore it off as she ran. Ahead of her was a singing blue stone wall, with no gap, but Masanath, hardly sane, would have dashed herself against it if hands had not detained her.

"Blood! Blood!" she shrieked. "Holy Ptah, save us!"

"Peace!" some one made answer. "God is with us."

The voice was calm and reassuring, the hands firm. Here, then, was one who was strong and unafraid and therefore a safe refuge. No longer called upon to care for herself, Masanath fell into the arms of the brave unknown and ceased to remember.

Consciousness returned to her slowly and incompletely. Horror had dazed her, and her surroundings, but faintly discovered in an all enveloping gloom, were not conducive to mental repose and clearness.

She became aware first that she was somewhere hidden from the sunshine and beyond the reach of the strange odor from the Nile.

Next she realized that she was sheltered in a cave, that slender lines of white daylight sifted through the lattices of a door, that a lamp was burning somewhere behind a screen, that a hairy thing sat in a corner and looked at her with half human eyes and that, as she shrank at the sight, the warm support under her head moved and of fair face, framed with golden hair, bent over her.

Then her eyes, becoming clearer as her recollection returned, wandered away toward the walls of her shelter. They had been heven by hands. There was an opening in one side, leading into another and a darker crypt. Was not this a tomb? She was in the Tomb of the Discontented Soul! Terrified, she struggled to gain her feet and fly, but the awful memory of the plague without returned to her overwhelming. Gentle hands restrained her, and the same voice that had sought to soothe her before continued its soft comforting now.

"Thou art safe and sheltered," she heard. "No evil shall befall thee."

Was this the spirit of the tomb? If so, it was most lovely and kindly. But a solemn voice issued out of the dark cell beyond. "This was the spirit of a surely. She covered against her fair haired protector and shuddered, but the maiden answered the voice in a strange tongue. Masanath would have known it to be Hebrew had she been composed, but now it was mystic, cabalistic.

Presently the maiden addressed her. "Deborah asks after thee, lady. How shall I tell her thou findest thyself?"

"Oh, I cannot tell," Masanath answered. "What has happened? Is it true or did I go mad?"

"The Israelite smoothed her hair. 'It is a plague,' she said.

"Then the hand of Amenti is on us," the Egyptian shuddered. "Whither shall we flee?"

"Ye cannot flee from the one God," the voice from the crypt said grimly.

"Nay, but what have I done to vex the gods?" Masanath insisted. "Oh, let me go hence. Where are my servants?"

"It is better for thee to bide here," the voice went on relentlessly, "for outside the sheltering neighborhood of the chosen people, the hand of the outraged God shall overtake Egypt and perch her throat with thirst and make her veins congeal for want of water."

Masanath gained her feet, crying out wildly:

"My servants! Where are they? Let me forth!"

The Israelite put an assuring arm about her. "Thou wilt not dare to face the Nile again," she warned. "Stay with us."

"To starve! To perish of thirst! To die of pestilence! The gods have left us! We are undone!"

"Aye, the gods have left you," the voice continued harshly. "Ye are given over to the vengeance of the God of Abraham. How! Egypt! Read thyself and cover thy head with ashes. Thy destruction is but begun. For a hundred years thou hast oppressed Israel. Now is the hour of the children of God!"

Masanath wrung her hands, but the voice went on. "As the Nile flows, so hath the blood of Israel been wasted by the hand of Egypt. Now shall the God of Abraham drain her veins, even so, drop for drop. For the despoiling of Israel shall her pastures and stables be filled with stricken beasts; for the heavy hand of the Pharaohs shall the heavens thunder and scourges fall. And the wrath of God shall cool not till Egypt is a waste, shorn of her corn, and her vineyards and her riches, and foul with dead men."

Nothing could have been more vindictive than this disembodied voice. Masanath thrust her fingers through her hair and, drawing her elbows forward, sheltered her face with them.

"When have I offended against the Hebrew?" she cried, sick with terror. "Why should your awful God destroy the innocent and the friend of Israel, among the people of Egypt?"

Rachel, who had stood beside her, with an increasing cloud on her face, now spoke in Hebrew. There was, mild protest in her tones.

"The plague will pass," the voice from the inner crypt continued. "Seven days will it endure; no more."

"Deborah is mystic," Rachel added softly, "and is gifted with prophetic eyes. Much hath she suffered at Egypt's hands, and her tongue grows harsh when she speaks of the oppression."

"Nay, but let me go," Masanath begged. "Where are my servants? Came they not after me when I fled?"

"None followed thee, lady, and thy raft went adrift."

"Let me out of this hideous place, then, for I must seek them. They may be dead."

Her tone was imperious, and Rachel, silently obedient, led her to the entrance and pushed aside the door. Instantly the terrible turmoil over Egypt smote upon her ears. Next she saw the Nile, moving slowly; black where its clear surfaces had been green, scarlet and froth ridden where the sun had shone upon, transparent ripples and white foam. After that the strange odor came to her, recalling the smell of altars, but now mangled till it was overpoweringly strong. She sickened and turned away.

Setting the door in place, Rachel led her back into a corner of the outer chamber and laid her down on the matting there.

"The Lord God will care for thy servants. Fret thyself no further, but be content here until the horror shall pass. I shall attend thee, so thou shalt not miss their ministrations." The Israelite spoke with gentle authority, smoothing the dark hair of her guest. Command in the form of persuasion is doubly effective, since it induces while it compels. Masanath was most amenable to this manner of entreaty, since it disarmed her pride while it governed her impulses. Thus, though her indignation urged against it, she at once when the Israelite brought her a bit of cold fowl and a beaker of wine at midday and again at sunset. And at night she slept because the Israelite told her she was safe and bade her close her eyes.

It was dawn when the fat beaver's daughter awoke again. She sat up and suffered Rachel to dress her hair and bathe her tiny hands and face with a solution of weak white wine.

"The water which we had stored with us is also corrupted. I fear we shall thirst if we have but wine to wet our lips," Rachel explained.

"Thou dost not tell me that ye abide in this place? How came ye here? Are ye lepers?" Masanath asked in a frightened voice.

"Nay, we are fugitives," Rachel answered. "Who art thou, lady?"

"I am Masanath, daughter of Hur-hat, fat bearer to the Pharaoh."

"And I am Rachel of Israel, daughter of Maai, and I have fled from shame. In all Egypt this is the one and only refuge for such as I. If my hiding place were published no help could save me from the despoiler. My one protector is she who lies within. She is my foster mother, old and ill from abuse at the hands of brutal servants. Thou hast my story."

As Rachel ceased, Deborah called from within.

"There is more," she said. "Come hither. I am moved to tell thee."

Masanath obeyed with hesitation and, pausing in the doorway of the inner chamber, heard the story of the Israelite. Great was her perplexity and her sorrow when she heard the name of Keakones spoken calmly and without grief. They did not know he was dead! She held her peace till the story was done.

"The time for the Egyptian's return is long past, but he will come soon," Deborah concluded.

Masanath slowly turned her head and looked at Rachel. This, then, was the love of that dear, dead artist for whom Memphis mourned and had ceased to wait. Masanath choked back her tears and said:

INQUEST SHEDS LITTLE LIGHT

John V. Streed Is Said to Have Feared Death by Assassination.

ONE REVOLVER IS MISSING

Dead Lawyer Had Pair of Pistols That Were Mates, but One Found Under His Body Belonged to Some One Else.

Kewanee, Ill., Sept. 28.—That Attorney John V. Streed, the attorney and politician who was found dying from a bullet wound in the head early Tuesday morning, for months before his death was in fear of an assassin was fully established by the developments in the mysterious case which is now generally believed to be murder. A letter was found, written by Mr. Streed to his wife Sept. 3 of this year, in which he related incidents which he considered as warnings against him.

In this same letter, which had not been mailed to his wife, but remained in his desk, he spoke of sometimes being fearful that he might be killed. It is supposed that he thought best not to alarm his wife by such a letter and after writing it laid it away.

His fears that his life was in danger were again given expression this month, this time verbally. While visiting his cousin, J. E. Peterson of Orion, two weeks ago he spoke of threats that had been made against him by a young man whose name he did not mention.

Victim Was Not Worried. Mr. Peterson was on the stand at the inquest and said that in telling of the matter Mr. Streed did not seem to be at all worried, but took the situation rather lightly.

An autopsy was held by Dr. J. E. Westerlund and Dr. J. A. Kirkland, who found the bullet had penetrated the brain from a point an inch back of the right ear to the left temple, lodging against the inner wall of the skull. The doctors said a man wounded in this manner might live a number of hours, but that the chances were he would die in a short time.

It was proved by Frank Streed, brother of the dead man, that the attorney had owned two revolvers, and one of these was found in the room. The revolver which was found under the body of the man when it was discovered at the door of the outhouse back of the postoffice building did not belong to Mr. Streed, from all the evidence now at hand. It has a barrel half an inch longer than that of the revolver in the house, and the two weapons owned by Mr. Streed were alike. It also developed that Streed probably was carrying to the building after being shot in the apartments.

Revolver May Be Clew.

The officers are making a determined effort to discover where the revolver found under the body came from, believing it will bring some light upon the mystery. Mrs. Streed, wife of the lawyer, who had been visiting in Pennsylvania, arrived Wednesday evening, being met at the station by the members of the Eastern Star lodge, of which she is worthy matron. She is prostrated by the death of her husband and says she does not see how he could have committed suicide. She turns from that theory, but has not as yet given to anyone any reason why her husband was murdered, or made any statement regarding the fears entertained by her husband as to his personal safety. She and Mr. Streed appeared to be most happily married.

State's Attorney in Doubt. State's Attorney Sturtz, after he had finished the examination of witnesses before the jury, said he was not ready to say whether he believes it a case of murder or suicide. The officer admitted there are facts pointing to both theories, and added that he would explore the matter to the fullest extent, possibly before the assembling of the coroner's jury.

The people holding to the murder theory declare the absence of Mr. Streed's pocketbook, in which he carried considerable money, and his papers, when the clothes were examined, is one of the facts upon which they base their belief. The gold watch was found, however, in the vest pocket.

Mr. Streed, in the course of his long and successful practice of law, had appeared against many men facing criminal charges, and may have brought enmity against himself. He also made enemies by his fearlessness in politics. It is declared by many that he was the victim of some political foe.

STATE BANKERS HEAR SHERMAN

Lieutenant Governor of Illinois Addresses Financiers at Bloomington.

ATTRIBUTES OF THE BANKER

Man Who Handles the Money of the People Must Be Prophetic and Keep in Touch with the Business of the World.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 28.—The negotiations of a New York financial magazine, aimed at bankers, and calling them corruptors of Legislatures, was taken up at the closing session of the Illinois Bankers' association Wednesday.

President Durham poured hot shot into the magazine for its recklessness. He denied the allegation that money had ever been used by the bankers to influence legislation.

He referred to the investigation of all proposed legislation in former Legislatures. He declared that the committees appointed always had acted in the belief that it was foolish to seek to buy legislation for the reason that it would not stay bought.

President Durham emphatically denied that any money had ever been used to influence legislation, and declared that bribery never had been resorted to or even considered. The expressions of the president met with hearty approval.

The speech of President Durham and that of Lieutenant Governor Sherman were two of the many interesting features of the day.

The Lieutenant Governor apologized for the absence of Governor Deneen and expressed his appreciation of the honor of being chosen to take his place. The speaker discussed the legal supervision of the bank and its reasonable and unreasonable aspect. There can be no conflict, he declared between legitimate banking and the public at large.

Sherman on Bankers.

The legitimate and honest banker is an important part of the community. He must be prophetic and keep in touch with the business public of the world.

Judge Sherman referred to the state banking laws and the laws that applied to trustees. Nobody, he said, objected to a reasonable control of corporate and private concerns, but you cannot always regulate the private individual in his business.

"There is no liberty in this country unless it comes through well regulated law," said Mr. Sherman. "There should be no difference between labor unions and bankers in this respect, and if either survives, it will be through law. We are all created equal, but there is not always an equality of opportunity."

"This applies to railroad rates. They are created equal, but do not always remain so. When there is discrimination equality of opportunity disappears. When there is discrimination in the supervision of banks and the insolvent bank escapes the examiner the public suffers."

"The state of Illinois is approaching the period when it will be managed with the same business acumen that marks the control of the banks. Each year sees an improvement both in Illinois and elsewhere, and the future appears encouraging."

New Officers Elected.

The convention adjourned after electing the following officers:

President, Thomas D. Catlin, Ottawa; first vice president, N. H. Greene, Tallula; members executive council, Daniel Crabb, Delevan; Ira D. Bask, Peoria; O. T. Foreman, Chicago; John Farson, Jr., Chicago; E. E. Crabtree, Jacksonville; W. J. Latner, Paxton; W. S. Stinson, Washington, T. C. O. McDonald, Fairbury; Chandler Starr, Rockford, and L. P. Scovell, Ravenswood.

The convention voted down a motion selecting Mackinac island for the next meeting place of the association. A suggestion was made by a member of the Association of Private Bankers for a state law requiring state examination of such banks.

Forestry Agitation in Italy.
Virgil in his day spoke of the "wandering woods" of Italy. To-day denuded hillsides are the rule, and the strenuous efforts of the "Pro Montibus et Silvis" societies have not yet succeeded in arousing the government to action in the matter of reafforesting.

Overbuilt Suburbs of London.
A suburban building boom has collapsed in London and thousands of "villas" stand empty in the outer circle of the metropolis. Builders overestimated the effect of new street car lines.

A Different Viewpoint.
Mrs. McSpurge—When I go out with this lovely new frock people will think I've been shopping in Paris.
Mr. McSpurge—Maybe they'll think I've been cracking a safe.—Cleveland Leader.

Odd Legacy Condition.
A Frenchman who died in Constantinople recently left $45,000 to his nephew, M. D'Albi, who lives in Paris, on condition that the young man cycle to Constantinople to get the legacy.

Case of Longevity.
A family living in the city of Tiflis, in the Caucasus, consists of five members whose combined age is 335 years. The father is 105 years, the mother is 95 and three sons are over 60.

American Women as Teachers.
Four-fifths of the teachers in the United States, according to a recent census bulletin, are women and were more teachers in this country than there are clergymen, lawyers and physicians together. In the proportion of women teachers employed the United States leads the world, although in nearly every civilized country the greater part of the teaching is done by women. This is in line with the general tendency toward the advancement of woman to a better place in this country. In 1890 the number of women in paying positions in this country was 3,914,571, and in 1900 this number had increased to 5,329,897. However, as the number of men in paying positions has also increased in the same time, it must not be accepted as certain that women are going to crowd men out of positions in intellectual employment altogether.

Tough Luck.
"Luck never manages things just right," said the irritable man who dislikes music. "It might just as well have been the other way round, but it wasn't."

"What is the trouble now?"
"My daughter who plays the piano has a sore throat, and the one who sings has a sore finger."

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kirkland celebrated their golden anniversary at their home near Litchfield, Ill.
